As part of my Lenten discipline this year, I have chosen NOT to “give up” something; rather I have decided to renew something that has been lacking in my personal life for some time, and that is an evening devotional. I am reading a chapter of the New Testament before bed each evening, then attempting to meditate on it while waiting to sleep. The reading has been easy, the meditation not so much (for several years I “gave up” Mountain Dew for Lent, and while I was fairly well rested by the time Easter rolled around, my spiritual life wasn’t necessarily any stronger).

My Sup 'n Study class, "The Confirmation You Never Had" is going well. This is Part Three of Four, 'Christianity from a Lutheran Perspective.' Part One was The Bible. Part Two covered Sacraments & God. Part Four will look at Adiaphra: Worship, the Church Year, the Office of the Keys, and Calling. I have had good response in terms of attendance and class participation.

I look forward to the upcoming days of Holy Week, for their special times of worship as well as their leading to the celebration of our risen Lord on Easter. I hope you all are able to take part in as many of those worship opportunities as your schedule allows.

God's peace,

Pastor John Brock
