

New Sunday worship schedule continues

8:30 & 10:45 am, Traditional
9:30 & 11:00 am, Contemporary

United and empowered to worship, connect, serve.

Tell us what you think of the summer worship schedule

Since Memorial Day, we've been trying out a new Sunday morning worship schedule: 8:30 and 10:45 for traditional, 9:30 and 11 for contemporary. One pastor now preaches at all services.

When we announced the new schedule, we said it would continue through the summer and then we'd evaluate it. So we've been asking folks to tell us if it works for them, and why or why not.

If you haven't already given us comments, address them to "Worship Evaluation" and email to trinluth@trinitycamphill.org. Or write a note and send/bring it to the church office. Let us hear from you by August 7!

World Hunger Appeal: Give generously on August 5-6 weekend and rest of month

World Hunger weekend is sponsored annually by the Missions Ministry Team to benefit the ELCA World Hunger Appeal. Programs help families in the U.S. and around the world by providing solutions, education, and medical assistance to address poverty and hunger. Here's what you can do:

- ✓ Sat., Aug. 5, starting at 9 am in the kitchen: Bake or donate bread and baked goods
Bake bread with our Missions Team and volunteers from Communities of Hope; or bring in your labeled donations of breads and baked goods. Sign up in the Gathering Space.
- ✓ Sat., Aug. 5, (evening service) and Sun. Aug. 6: "Buy" bread and baked goods
Take item(s) and donate generously.
- ✓ Give monetary gifts during month of August (will show on your giving record)
Look for World Hunger Appeal envelopes in Aug. 5-6 bulletins and in Narthex and Fellowship Hall during August. Make checks payable to Trinity; write "World Hunger" on memo line.

Ideas needed for fall Sup 'n Study! The theme is "Strengthened to Serve: Mind, Body, Spirit." What topics? What presenters? Send suggestions to Kelly Falck, Director of Faith Formation, kelly.falck@trinitycamphill.org.

Letters to Trinity

Dear Trinity Family,

I would like to thank my wonderful Trinity family for all the cards and expressions of condolence after my mother's death on June 25. I have been overwhelmed at the outpouring of love and support! You all are my inspiration and ongoing example of how God would have us live in community. My family and I appreciate you through all the ups and downs of life! --Debbie Wilson

Dear Trinity Family,

A big thank you for all the thoughts, prayers, altar flowers, and prayer shawl, as well as the cards that were sent to me. I also appreciated visits from Bishop Edmiston as well as from friends while I was in hospital and then rehab after my fall in Nassau. I feel so very blessed and thankful to be a member of the Trinity family. Thank you again. --Love, Sandy Lunger.

Dear Staff and Trinity Members,

I would like to express my thanks for all the cards, phone calls, flowers, and especially the prayers during the time of my recovery from ankle surgery on March 15, and also the visits from Pastor Horner, Bishop Edmiston, and Tim Koch. Recovery is slow, which I had expected. It is great to be a part of this loving and caring congregation! --Sincerely, Kay Range

Yes! VBS-style fun is coming to Sunday School

The reviews are in! Our Vacation Bible School was so much fun—and such a success with 200 kiddos like those at right—that we'll use that model for Sunday School starting this coming school year.

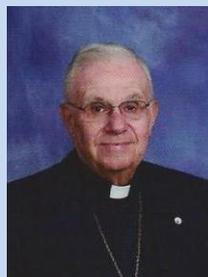

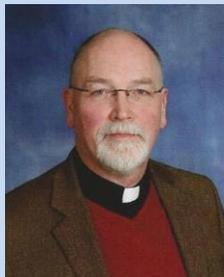

To set the tone, we're moving this year's Maker Fun Factory theme and decorations to the Education Wing, where we'll start each week with a large-group opening packed full of songs, skits, video clips, and Bible points.

Children ages 3 through grade 5 will begin together as part of the large group, and then we'll transition to small age-based crews for further discussion, games, and more.

Registration opens in mid-August, so watch for more info.

In the meantime, can you help? We need more volunteers age 14 and up to ensure success. Join the team by emailing kelly.falck@trinitycamphill.org.

Lead pastor's column: Learning together

Thomas Edison, when asked by a reporter about the seemingly incredible difficulties associated with his invention of the lightbulb, reportedly said, "I have not failed. I've just found 10,000 ways that won't work."

Edison was a learner.

When I decided to follow God's call to ministry, I had no idea how it would work or how I would get there. I remember being amazed by the pastor's preaching. Each and every Sunday a new message connected the Bible with our lives and I felt as if he was speaking right to me.

"How in the world would I be able to do that?" I thought to myself.

I came to realize that it wasn't going to be just me on my own. There were dozens of people who helped me grow and learn along the way: parents, teachers, friends, teammates, guidance counselors, mentors, bosses, pastors, supervisors, professors, advisors, librarians, parishioners, colleagues, confirmation students, spouse, children, bishops. My development as a pastor and as a person is the result of a community...a teaching and learning community.

That's what the church is, after all, when it is living at its best. We open ourselves up to grow and learn, listen and follow, share and experience, teach and mentor. Peter Senge, author of The Fifth Discipline, writes, "A learning organization is an organization that is continually expanding its capacity to create its future." We all grow when we are committed to learning together.

Sometimes things will work, sometimes they won't.

Sometimes things will work, sometimes they won't. New programs might fail, or they might succeed beyond our wildest dreams. So we must try and keep on trying. Experimentation is the key to adaptation in today's world. Thomas Edison is right: "Our greatest weakness lies in giving up. The most certain way to succeed is always to try just one more time."

Let's learn together!

The Rev. Dr. Jack Horner

A guardian angel in Camp Hill?

Chancel Choir member has a compelling personal story

It was last summer, a sweltering hot day in 2016. Maggie Devorick, a member of our Chancel Choir, was doing something she loves: working outdoors and tending to her flower gardens.

In the backyard of Maggie's home is a sound barrier wall that separates the property from the heavily travelled Route 581. Maggie pays little attention to the wall, and it doesn't stop her from her gardening hobby. "I could spend several hours a day there," she said.

On this particular day, however, she stopped her work sooner than expected. It was unusual for her. "Feeling overwhelmed, something urged me to stop—to end my project for the day," she recalled. She walked into her house in search of some cool water.

Less than five minutes later, there was a loud boom. It came from the highway. A split second later, there was another sound—metal striking metal. Maggie guessed the noise came from a truck that had blown its tire. The sound of metal against metal remained in her head.

Not a big deal, right?

Wrong.

Later that day, Maggie walked again to her yard, accompanied by the family dog. The dog approached the garden area in a cautious way, standoffish. Maggie looked closely, and she saw something odd stuck in the ground.

It was in the precise spot where she had been working before that unusual feeling had compelled her to stop. Maggie tugged and twisted and pulled the object—turns out only the top inch or so was above ground—until she unearthed a piece of heavy metal, nearly half a foot at its longest part and at least half an inch thick. Likely it came from the truck's wheel. There was no doubt it had struck the ground as a projectile with lethal force.

It was then she noticed something else. The very ground from which she pulled the metal still bore the impression that her seated body had made earlier.

What if she hadn't moved?

"That day in the heat of the summer sun," Maggie wonders, "was I helped by my guardian angel?"

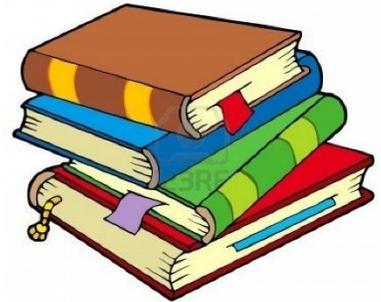

Maggie Devorick holds the projectile that has now been turned into artwork.

Maggie saved the metal. Amy Heinley—friend, fellow choir member, and exceptional artist—painted an angel image on it to create a calming piece of art. Maggie still thinks about that day in 2016; she returned to her backyard garden this year with a sense of wonder, awe, and thankfulness.

Join our monthly book discussion group

Trinity's Book Group has announced the books to read and discuss for the next four months. The group meets monthly on the third Sunday from 9:30 to 10:30 am in Room 232-234. All are invited! Read all the books or just those that appeal to you. No buying necessary—you can get them through the Cumberland County Library System. Summaries below are condensed from Amazon.

- Sun., Aug. 20: *Lone Wolf, by Jodi Picoult
A life hanging in the balance, a family torn apart...an unforgettable story about family secrets, love, and letting go.
- Sun., Sept. 17: *Riders of the Purple Sage, by Zane Grey
Western classic. Lassiter shows up in a Utah town just in time to save the young and beautiful rancher, Jane, from having to marry a Mormon elder against her will.
- Sun., Oct. 15: *The Mathews Men: Seven Brothers and the War Against Hitler's U-boats, by William Geroux
One of the last unheralded heroic stories of World War II.
- Sun., Nov. 19: *A Man Called Ove, by Fredrick Backman
A comical, heartwarming tale about the circumstances that change an angry curmudgeon.

Two outstanding new Eagle Scouts named

- Liam Bishop, son of Trinity's Bill and Zandra Bishop, and grandson of Peggy Bishop and the late Les Bishop, is a member of Scout Troop 54 chartered by Grace Lutheran Church. Liam's Eagle Court of Honor was held at Grace on June 11. For his Eagle project, he built convertible benches for the Manchester Borough Park and upgraded some landscaping at the Manchester Borough Building. Liam graduated in May from Northeastern High School; he will attend Rochester Institute of Technology to study mechanical and/or industrial engineering.
- Boy Scout Troop 51, chartered by Trinity, also has a new Eagle Scout. In fact, Cameron James Morgan is the troop's 100th Eagle; his ceremony was held at Trinity on July 8. Cam's Eagle project was completed at Willow Mill Park in Silver Spring Township, where he refurbished an information board and installed a split-rail fence, a concrete pad, and a barbeque. Cam just finished his sophomore year at Cumberland Valley High School. He's active in the Harrisburg Youth Symphony and, after finishing high school, plans to attend the US Naval Academy.

Stewardship news

E-giving to be counted as pledges; new Giving Station unveiled in Gathering Space

Two important announcements from our Stewardship Team:

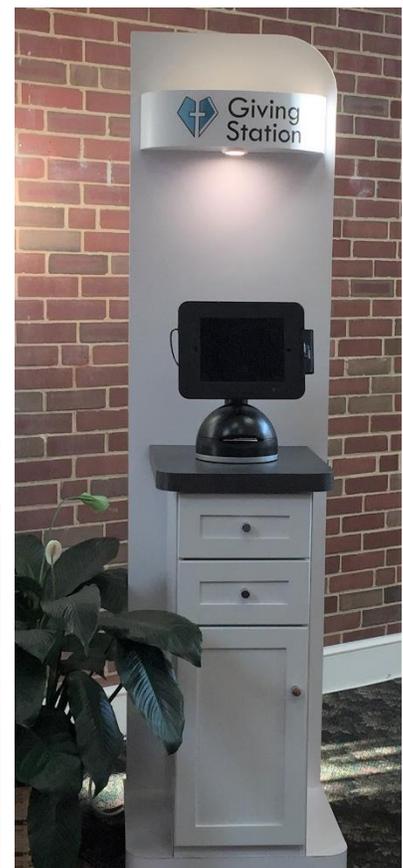

1. For the first time, recurring electronic contributions will be counted as pledges when members' estimates of giving are tabulated. E-giving now accounts for 35 percent of all membership giving, so counting recurring e-gifts as pledges will improve the precision of our total revenue estimates when Trinity's yearly budget is developed.

No matter what your giving method, however, be sure to fill out an Estimate of Giving form. Those forms let Trinity know how much member revenue we can expect and, accordingly, how much to budget for all that Trinity does.

2. Trinity's giving kiosk in the Gathering Space has been transformed into a Giving Station thanks to members Wayne and Elaine Fetto, right, who donated their vision for a new design, along with labor and materials. LED lighting, signage, paint, hardware, and a soapstone top all give a refined look that makes the station easy to spot. Of course, it's always been easy to use—just touch the screen and follow the prompts to donate using your credit or debit card.

Wayne and Elaine Fetto

Wow! A new look!

Dave Maser, our dedicated Stewardship leader, is seeking new members to help with this work so critical to Trinity's future. Meetings are on the fourth Tuesday of each month at 7 pm.
