

'Twosamehands'

So, last week, you may remember that Haman had done the unthinkable to help himself and in turn, it hurt his sister Polly. He secretly switched one of his own two right hands with Polly's left hand so now Polly was the child afflicted with the difficult to recognize, little known malady called 'twosamehands'.

EVERYONE noticed Polly's unusual really poor behavior, but no one saw that she now has the dreaded 'twosamehands'!

No one noticed that is until a few weeks had gone by and a very quiet member of the story family, Obadiah, noticed. It happened one day at the swimming class during camp at the YMCA. Obadiah had noticed Haman's 'twosamehands' and now saw that Haman was cured and Polly has 'twosamehands'.

Obadiah softly flew over to Haman and stood silently in front of him and looked back and forth at Haman's arms.

Haman slowly realized that Obadiah SAW! And Haman felt very guilty. CAUGHT!

And Haman looked down and said: "I am sorry!"

"Polly is the one who needs your apology, not me." said Obadiah.

"But I don't want to go back to 'twosamehands'!" And Haman had big tears roll down his face.

And Haman was still too afraid to tell his parents about what he had done. "They won't love me anymore." he thought.

Obadiah told Haman "I will go with you when you tell your mommy and daddy. And I will bring Nurse Fran also."

Haman was SO sorry that he had taken this unthinkable action. So, that very evening, right after supper, when the dishes were all washed and dried, there was a knock on the front door. And it was Obadiah and Nurse Fran.

And here they are, all six of them.

"Well, well, well! It is nice to see you Nurse Fran. And you too Obadiah! What brings you to our door?"

And Haman said "Well . . . well . . . well . . . You see, I,I,I need their help to talk to you. I did the unthinkable . . . "
